

OCTOBER 29TH

Proverbs 29:21 “He who pampers his servant from childhood will have him as a son in the end.” (NKJV)

We don't have servants in this day and age, but there is still relevance to this verse today. Here is a question for you: How do you treat the underclassmen on your team? Are they your servants? In fact, how do you treat anyone that you consider “under” you? It is important to be a “servant leader.” Simply put, you need to lead by example. Why not be first in line for sprints or a drill? Why not pick up a dummy without being told or waiting for a coach to tell somebody to do it? If you do, I promise your teammates will respond. I can still remember the names of the upperclassmen that took their time to help me with my stance, with route, or explain a coverage to me. I think many people forget that they are all on the same team. Jesus hung out with the poor, healed the sick and ate dinner with the most hated people of that time. Here is a great question for you: Would you clean the spikes of a Freshmen?

CHALLENGES FOR TODAY:

How would your teammates react if you cleaned the spikes of somebody younger than you?

What else could do for the team to show that you are a servant leader? _____

How could your Godly attitude be used to be an influence on others? _____
